ABOUT ME

I'm a self-taught Frontend Web Developer based in Lagos, Nigeria. I love minimalist & cool designs and animations. I spend most of my time either writing new codes or reviewing previous ones, adhering to real applications implementation with the knowledge and understanding of web development concepts.

I like looking for solutions and creating a great user experience. I've worked with other developers on projects and created several working SPAs and websites that are maintainable and scalable.

I also love reading a lot. I like pop music and good food. I recently fell in love with writing and I've written some articles with a few in my draft.
